Claims Rejected

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 7, 9 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nitsche '502. Nitsche shows a transmission for a working vehicle wherein a clutch 20 of a torque converter 30 is allowed to slip when the transmission is shifted between forward and reverse ranges. The amount of slip is variable, as recited starting at line 44 of column 4.

Claims Objected

Claims 8, 10 and 11 are objected to as being dependent on a rejected base claim but contain allowable subject matter. The subject matter of these claims is allowable because the prior art does not anticipate nor render obvious the claimed combination as recited in claim 7, with the additional features of wherein the speed of the drive engine (1) is not reduced during the driving direction change, or: wherein the clutch (2) is regulated so that the first and second driving direction clutches or the hydrodynamic torque converter (4) are operated within acceptable operating parameters.

Prior Art Discussed

The examiner has considered the references cited by applicant in his Information

Disclosure Statement filed April 23, 2004. The reference to patent "4,077,522" is incorrect because the number should have been 4,077,502, since that patent is the U.S. equivalent of the cited German patent. The original Information Disclosure Statement filed concurrently with the application has been deleted in favor of the corrected Statement filed April 23, 2004.

Application/Control Number: 10/800,576 Page 3

Art Unit: 3681

The reference cited by the examiner is deemed pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Asada shows a hydraulic control system for a working vehicle drivetrain, but does not apparently show the slipping of a drive clutch between a torque converter and an engine during shifting between forward and reverse ranges as required by the claims.
